UNCLE VANYA

Directed by Lee Kahn
Settling and lighting by Sam Bell Steves III

"Chekhov's 'realism' is not the sort in which things are seen from a single point of view and made to look simple and certain. It is a realism which is constantly discovering the mystery — and significance — of the ordinary: the unrelatedness and ambiguity of the most familiar behavior or the most casual words, the indeterminacy of spontaneous thoughts and feelings. Hence the difficulty of interpreting Chekhov — and the satisfaction of producing him well. As Maurice Valency has written: '... from the contrast between what seems, from one viewpoint, comic, but tragic from another, Chekhov developed a form of drama, a dramatic polyphony, which is unparalleled in the history of the theatre.'" — David Magarashack

Chekhov's UNCLE VANYA was very carefully selected as the premiere piece for the Old Boiler Room Theatre. Since the purpose of this new performing space is one which allows for experimentation with different forms and styles of dramatic literature, the Chekhovian "play of action" was a good choice. The idea of a small audience being allowed to see mininteractions and relationships from many points of view was the idea which confirmed the selection of this play.

SOCCER*

Upon concluding his first season at W&L Coach Rolf Piranian was a bit disappointed with his team's 3 and 10 record, but his expectations are high for the coming season. Coach Piranian refers to 1976 as a building year, one in which the team faced a very tough schedule and yet continued to maintain a great attitude throughout the season.

Not only did morale remain high, but three school records were broken — all by junior goalie Mark Bennet (saves in a game, 28; saves in a season, 192; saves in a career, 338). With the help of both returning talent, such as Mark's and an intense off-season program — "Program On-the-Move" — the team is looking ahead to a successful 1977 season.

Scores: Eastern Mennonite, 0-3; Radford, 6-1; Guilford, 0-6; UNC-Greensboro, 4-2; UVA, 0-4; Madison, 0-3; VMI, 1-2; Lynchburg, 1-4; Liberty Baptist, 1-2; United States Naval Academy, 0-6; Hampden-Sydney, 1-3; Virginia Tech, 0-1; Roanoke, 1-0.

PARENTS' WEEKEND

DOCTOR FAUSTUS

Directed by William D. Cantler
Setting by Tom Ziegler
Lighting by Jim Jones

Cut is the branch that might have grown full straight,
Burnt is Appollo's laurel bough
That sometime grew within this learned man.
Faustus is dead; regard his hellish fall
Whose fiendful fortune doth exhort the wise
Only to wonder at unlawful things
Whose deepness doth entice such forward wits
To practice more than heavenly power permits.

Christopher Marlow — Doctor Faustus

W&L experienced its best season since 1967, as the team gelled near mid-season and went on to win four of its last five games. Coach McHenry cites unity and leadership as the two big factors which contributed to the team's success.

Seniors, headed by co-captains Tony Perry and Jeff Slatcoff, inspired unity among the players who, in general, displayed more dedication, sacrifice and a much better attitude than in the past.

A "break-even" season appeared out of the question during the first half of the schedule, when W&L could manage only a 7-3 victory over Randolph Macon in the Wilson Field mud. But W&L exploded during the next five games to finish the season with a 5-5 mark.

Working with a young squad — only two seniors starting on offense and defense — the coaches have fielded a team which should show continued strength next year. However, the team will sorely miss the services of graduating co-captain Tony Perry. Perry not only holds most of W&L's pass receiving records, but was also named All-American.

Though the team is not allowed by NCAA rules to hold spring practices, members of the team are working out informally for the upcoming season. With another strong recruiting year, hopes are high for another fine season.

Says Coach McHenry, "We're beginning to experience the pay-off for hard work."

The 1976 W&L Cross-country team experienced a season of ups and downs, not just in the hills they ran, but also in the results of their races. With four of last year's starters under contract again, Coach Dick Miller seemed to have a solid nucleus for this season in senior co-captains Paul Thomson and Mike Burns, junior Al Weeks, and sophomore Jim Frantz. Disaster struck the team early, though, as Thomson was lost for the season with a thigh injury. The first meet set the tone for the remainder of the season as the Generals swamped Shepherd but were themselves blistered by Davis and Elkins. The Generals were never really involved in a close team race at all during the season. When they won, nine times, they won big; When they lost, five times, they lost big. In the second meet they outclassed both Roanoke and Norfolk State. The third meet saw the team run a disappointingly poor race in Norfolk, losing to Lynchburg, but still topping Norfolk State and Virginia Wesleyan. Next came the Generals' first home meet, but the home course advantage was not enough, as Bridgewater mauled the Generals in spite of good times for W&L runners. The high point of the season came the following week, as the W&L runners out-classed both West Virginia Tech and Liberty Baptist. In their last dual meet of the season, though, the Generals were out of it from the start in losing to Eastern Mennonite and Madison. The season concluded with a disappointing fourth place finish in the six-team ODAC meet held on W&L's own course.

Throughout the course of the season, Al Weeks led the team to the finish. He, along with Burns, Frantz, and freshman Richard "Tweety" Bird, gave the team a consistent top four. The fifth spot was a problem, as there was often a large gap between the first four and the fifth man. Senior Chris Haynes, juniors Kevin Grimm and Bill Welch, and freshman David Baynard competed for the fifth spot on the squad.

Coach Miller, who just completed his 25th year of coaching with an over-all record of 128-93-2, is looking ahead enthusiastically to next year when the Generals will be headed by co-captains Weeks and Welch, losing only Burns and Haynes from this year's top seven.

Men at W&L Think Positive

By STEVE HANER
Shenandoah Bureau

LEXINGTON — Washington and Lee University's average freshman thinks he is smarter, better-looking, more ambitious, more understanding, more popular, more original and more cheerful than the average college freshman in America.

The young men's self-images were measured by the 1976 American Council on Education survey of 254 four-year colleges.

In 14 of 20 categories, half or more of the W&L men rated themselves as above average. In all these categories and several more, they thought more highly of themselves than did the rest of America's male freshmen.

They rated themselves lowest on political liberalism and defensiveness. They consider themselves better athletes, better artists, better leaders, better writers, and better public speakers than most of their contemporaries.

Sixty per cent of them were honest enough to admit they enjoy above average amounts of self-confidence.

W&L publicity chief Robert Keefe released these figures, and defended several of them as honest. He said the school's academic standards are high, and the average freshman 1,235 college board score does place him intellectually above the national average.

"The other stuff," he admitted, "is vanity." Asked why he released the figures, he said, "We can laugh at ourselves."

Keefe isn't the only one laughing, gentlemen. Down the road at Hollins College, the figures elicited some snickers. A couple of women familiar with W&L and men at other schools had different opinions.

Asking that their names not be published, the two women especially disagreed with the 52.2 per cent who felt themselves better looking and the 49 per cent who felt themselves more popular with women. They agreed W&L men are smarter and more ambitious, and one said they were more original.

One said the men were laboring under "a misconception." The other blamed their early "sheltered environment," where they always had their way. She admitted they do pretty well socially, but only because of their convenient location to Hollins, Sweet Briar and Mary Baldwin.

She figured they would catch on to the truth eventually, but it would be painful.

Paced by co-captains John Hudson and Tad Van Leer, the Generals posted yet another outstanding season by earning a 6-3 dual meet record, a fourth place finish in the state meet, sending seven men to the Nationals and coming away with five All-Americans.

The secret to Coach Stearns boys' success? Hard work and dedication. The swimmers were expected to swim about 25,000 yards each week, with some of the distance men swimming up to 40,000 yards. As for dedication; well, suffice it to say that the team participated in overnight, away meets during Homecoming and Fancy Dress Weekend.

The highlight of the dual season came in a thrilling, one-point victory over eventual state champion Richmond. W&L worked all season towards the state meet and Nationals, though, and all of the hard work paid off.

The General's fourth place finish in the state tournament was exceptional — only Richmond, VPI and VCU finished ahead. All three are Division I schools while W&L remains in Division III.

Seven W&L swimmers qualified for the Nationals. Five returned from the meet at Oberlin College in Ohio as All-Americans. They are: Scott Duff, Chip Hoke, John Hudson, Keith Romich and Tad Van Leer.

BASKETBALL

In what will be marked as "a season to remember," the W&L basketball Generals ended their 1976-77 season with a loss to Glassboro State of New Jersey, 103-87. The NCAA Division III South Atlantic Championship Tournament proved to be an unhappy ending to an otherwise star-studded season.

After winning 23 of their first 25 games, the Generals finished out the year with a three game losing streak, being nipped by Madison 82-81, losing to William Paterson 92-68, and falling to Glassboro in the NCAA Tournament. Paterson won the South Atlantic crown, defeating Methodist College of the Dixie Conference 62-60.

Several team and individual records were set in the 1976-77 season. Records: most wins in one year (23); longest winning streak (17 games); highest points per game average (87.5); most points in one season (2451); and highest field goal (.502) and free throw percentages (.746) for a season.

Guard Mike Wenke set records for the most assists in one game (13 vs. UNC-Greensboro) and in a season (196, 7.0 avg.); Pat Dennis set a new mark for seasonal field goal percentage (.574); Chris Larson did the same for free throw percentage (.826). Dennis, an All-American candidate, moved into fourth on the list for most points in one season (607), and into sixth on the list for highest points per game average in one season (21.7).

Verne Canfield coached his eleventh straight winning season at W&L and now has 203 career victories to go with 120 career losses, a winning percentage of .628. Canfield was named Coach of the Year in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference (ODAC).

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY
LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Class of 1977:

Like student generations themselves, the long succession of Calyx issues reflects a remarkable degree of continuity in the character of Washington and Lee University, yet at the same time demonstrates an intriguing evolution of student life and student attitudes.

I turn frequently to my shelf of yearbooks to refresh my memory of a particular alumnus or of a special period or event in our long span of activity. When my search takes me to a CALYX of the 1920's or an earlier time, I find a book whose entries of poetry and essays suggest a literary emphasis that has not persisted. Yearbooks of post-World War II years and the 1950's strike me as compartmentalized and alphabetized, extremely useful in learning who did what but somewhat formal in photography and format. Recently, the CALYX style appears more artistic and diverse in its photographic approach, a generally successful effort to capture visually the essence of student life on campus and in this community.

I don't know what features will characterize this volume, your yearbook. I am confident, though, that your editors have tried earnestly to capture on these pages scenes and faces that will be a source of delightful remembering for you over your long and happy futures. I believe you'll find yourselves looking back on these recent years here as an exciting time to have been at Washington and Lee. There is so much here that endures, so much that does, and must, change. You have been an essential part of both. This book will help us who remain to remember you, and I hope it will help you remember us.

Lutz to succeed Yevich; choirs of angels sing

By ROBERT LUTZ
Editor-elect

The Publication Board announced Sunday night that noted gonzo journalist Robert D. Lutz, known affectionately in the Print Shop as "B.W.", had been selected to serve as Editor-in-Chief of the Ring-tum Phi for the 1976-77 academic year.

Highly placed observers had the following reactions:

Robert Keefe, Director of the News Information Office:

"The question here is one of spiritual integrity. Fortunately, I don't know anything about that. I just went along with Yevich."

Stephen Yevich, current Editor-in-Chief: "Anybody but that cotton-faced pinheaded southern son Fitzgerald."

Joe Fitzgerald, assistant news editor and frustrated would-be power broker: "At least we're getting rid of that kinky-haired Russian trouble maker Yevich."

Rumours of a conspiracy should be entirely discounted, Whiskers said.

Editorial Opinion of The Ring-tum Phi

Thursday, November 11, 1976

Apologia

I know of just one person who liked last week's issue of the Ring-tum Phi, and it wasn't me. Aside from that, the reaction was universally in accord: lousy.

Naturally, I feel badly about this. God knows we try and try to keep this thing at least readable even though it is an incredible bitch to put out week after week. The presidential straw poll (ambitious by RtP standards) and the real election created a physical and emotional tension whose catharsis left many of us drained and disoriented; attempting to piece together a front page immediately before and after (during, for some) election night's ino way to enjoy oneself or anybody else. I've been trying unsuccessfully to relax ever since.

Basically a social organization with an anti-social bias, the Mongolian Minks were founded on the shores of Mesopotamia by Alexander the Great after the famous battle of Euphrates.

Ranking with the national orders of Phi Beta Kappa and ODK, the Minks have long represented a social grace which is unequaled on the campus.

According to Webster's Dictionary, a calyx is: 1) "the external usually green or leafy part of a flower consisting of sepals" (sepals!), or, 2) "a cuplike animal structure." But to most W&L students — we hope — the CALYX is our yearbook, a mostly photographic record/statement of what this year has been.

We've tried to put into pictures both who and what our school is all about. Most of all, we've tried to photograph as many of you doing as many different things as possible; hoping that in years to come when you are in your study with a grandson — or secretary — on your lap, you will be able to pick up the book and relive fond memories of 1976-77 at Washington and Lee.

Parties, exams, friends, professors, places, organizations, sports, plays.

From registration to lacrosse, most of everything that has taken place over the last year is somewhere in the book. There are, to be sure, some things we missed. There are no pictures of anyone staying up all night; no pictures of return road trips at 2 a.m.; no pictures of jubilation/anguish when grades come.

Anyhow, here it is. It's the best we could do, sort of our constitution of the 1976-77 year at Washington and Lee. You know, by, of and for the people. Corny, yes. But appropriate, and besides, we have to end this letter somehow.

Hope you enjoy it —

ROTC cadets participate in Happy Hour conducted by ROTC Department at the end of Fall Term 1976.

"SUCCESS"

ROTC ENHANCES YOUR CIVILIAN CAREER THROUGH:

Extended Officer experience followed by your civilian career Field.

Reserve Component opportunities coupled with a civilian job.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES — Numerous career fields are available to choose from, depending upon your qualifications. They include: Personnel Management, Finance, Engineer, Armor, Maintenance Management, Personnel Administration, Education, Comptroller, Chemical, Foreign Area Officer, Communications, Transportation, Procurement, Infantry, Law Enforcement, and many others.

CHALLENGING ADVENTURE TRAINING — While participating in the Army ROTC Program at Washington and Lee, you will be able to participate in voluntary, adventure activities such as: Rappelling, Skydiving, Spelunking, Skiing, Canoeing, Hiking, Patrolling, Biking, Orienteering, Soaring, Water Survival, and many others. Activities are scheduled at times that are convenient to the students.

PROFESSIONAL DEGREES — LAW OR MEDICINE —

Educational delays are available after completion of your undergraduate degree so that you can complete Law or Medical School. You can utilize your professional degree in the active army if you are selected for active duty, or practice on your own while serving in a reserve component.

FINANCIAL BENEFITS — In addition to Four-Year Scholarships, Army ROTC offers One-, Two-, and Three-Year Scholarships for which all cadets are eligible to compete. Even if you are a non-scholarship cadet, you will receive over $2500 during the last two years of the Four Year Program. Upon commissioning as a 2nd Lieutenant and selection for active duty, your starting salary will be over $11,000.

LEADERSHIP/MANAGEMENT TRAINING — In Army ROTC, you learn not only to manage people, but money and materials as well. You will learn to make more important planning decisions than most young executives. You will develop the qualities that not only the Army wants, but the civilian market: Self-discipline, Responsibility, Maturity, and Leadership
